DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-20 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Delanty (US 2,208,021).

Delanty discloses a running board assembly for a rail car comprised of a support structure made of metal bars 11, 12 and a bushing 24. The bushing 24 protrudes upward through the support structure 11, 12 and extends outward under the support structure 11, 12. The bushing 24 covers a mounting bracket 19a from metal to metal contact between the support structure 11, 12 and the mounting bracket 19a. A hole is formed through the support structure 11, 12, through the bushing 24 and through the mounting bracket 19 a. This hole receives a threaded bolt through the three layers to secure the support structure 11, 12 to the mounting bracket and is mated to a nut 28 on the underside of the mounting bracket 19a. By tightening the nut against the underside of the mounting bracket 19a the support structure is isolated from movement and vibration by the bushing 24. The bushing 24 and support structure 11, 12 are supported on a raised portion 21 of the mounting bracket 19a.

Delanty discloses the features as described above. However, Delanty does not specifically show a non-metallic bushing secured between the support surface and the bracket. It is well known in the art that non-metallic bushings, also commonly known as washers or gaskets and commonly made of rubber or plastic, are used between two like materials so as to prevent damage and lengthen the life of the product. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to apply a rubber or plastic bushing or washer between the support surface and the mounting bracket as well as between the head of the bolt and the support surface to extend the life of the support surface and bolt as well as prevent damage to the parts.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-20 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Murphy (US 2,102,276), Burnett (US 2,278,191) and Bartsch (US 2,401,401) all disclose various forms of mounting structures for running boards on railcars.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
